10% Super Tax Imposed on the Corporate Sector; Impact?

Friday, 24 June, 2022

Prime Minister Shehbaz Sharif on Friday announced that the government will be imposing a 10% "Super Tax" on large-scale industries in a bid to shore up revenues for supporting the country's poor amid rising inflation. The supper tax of 4% will be applicable to all sectors. But for the specified 13 sectors, another 6% will be added for a total of 10%. So, their tax rate will go from 29% to 39%. This is a one-time tax needed to curtail the previous budget deficits.

Specified sectors that will be charged a 10% super Tax are as follows:

Oil & Gas Fertilizer Steel Sugar LNG Terminals Textile Banks Automobile Tobacco Cement Beverages Chemicals Airlines Other sectors which will be charged a 4% super Tax are as follow: Cable & Electrica Investment ETFs Glass & Ceramics Modarabas Paper & Board Pharmaceuticals Insurance Power Technology Transport Goods Banks Food & Personal Care

Furthermore, high net worth individuals will also be subject to a "poverty alleviation tax".

- > 1% tax imposed on Rs 150 million per annum income
- 2% tax imposed on Rs 200 million per annum
- 3% tax imposed on Rs 300 million income per annum

This in our view has paved the way for the restoration of the IMF program. The SBP might also raise the policy rate by around 100-200 bps in the coming days after which the IMF will release its trench of $1bn. The size and duration of the program are also expected to be increased. Furthermore, we expect the companies to pass on the impact of increased taxation to consumers. Hence, the profitability of those companies would not be affected that much. However, the loss of buying power will cause the contraction of the economy in the coming year. We suggest our investors to consider the dip as buying opportunity and accumulate the recommended stocks with high dividend yields and low debt-to-equity ratios.
